EDUCATE. EMPOWER. ENGAGE.

Meet “Jenn At War”: Jenn Amo

As a missionary, Jenn serves as a bold voice for those who have been silenced. Across streets, state lines, and across nations, she speaks about the risks that men, women and children face each day. Let us share with you the unique work of Jenn Amo.

Even as a child, Jenn understood what it meant to live a life of Christ-centered service. Her parents (Jim & Linda Luedeman, in full-time ministry) modeled such a life for Jenn and her family. This example followed Jenn and her two sisters into adulthood with all three learning to put others’ needs before their own. Both of Jenn’s sisters have served abroad and now, Jenn, with the full support of her husband Matt, is taking action in our own country, states, and cities.

When Jenn first heard the US trafficking statistics, a fire was ignited within her that has led her begin a ministry for youth and young adults. She believes that the dangers local children, teens, and young adults face cannot be ignored. Jenn’s mission is to create awareness for youth and young adults by sharing the Warning Lights programs she created. These programs will equip American youth with the knowledge and skills needed to fight human trafficking and to find refuge from its many dangers. Jenn looks forward to seeing God open doors so that she can spread the message. As she pursues speaking engagements at schools, universities, churches, camps, and more, she trust that God will lead her to the people and places that need His protection and love. She wants to be sure that her audiences are able to recognize the Warning Lights of human trafficking.

Jenn graduated from Cornerstone University in Grand Rapids, Michigan with a Bachelor’s Degree in Communication Arts. This degree fits her perfectly! You will notice that she connects with her varied audiences in a way that is not only easy to listen to, but clear and to the point! Her audiences experience a journey of ministry, passion, and emotion that ensures a stronger sense of how to protect themselves and those within their circle of influence. Her audiences also experience a multimedia presentation that raises awareness, creates compassion for others and takes them on a journey that includes a variety of emotions. Jenn makes Warning Lights both entertaining and memorable.

Be sure to help raise awareness by networking for her and following her on social media. You can also help by requesting her as a speaker for your next youth event! Be courageous. Be aware and SHARE!
